

Role Play #1

Character 1

Character 1: You are a teacher at school, and a student comes and tells you about a friend of theirs. The friend keeps getting really sexual messages and requests to do sexual things from a certain group at school and its making them feel really anxious.

Your task: Find out the identity of the friend and persuade Character 2 that they and their friend will not get in to trouble if they come to you for help. Find out why their friend doesn't want to come and talk to you.

Things to consider: Who are you, where are you and why are you there?

--- Cut here

Character 2

Character 2: You are a friend of someone who keeps getting really sexual messages and requests to do sexual things from a certain group at school. You've tried to convince them to tell someone, but they feel anxious about it and don't want to. You feel you have to help them, but don't want to get you or them in trouble.

Your task: Speak to a teacher and find out what advice you can give your friend. You're not sure if you should reveal your friend's identity.

Things to think about: Who are you, where are you and why are you there?

--- Cut here

Role Play #2

Character 1

Character 1: You are a friend of Character 2. You are round at their house, both looking through social media when you come across someone mentioning your friend in an indirect way, suggesting they are someone who is 'easy' and says yes to any request for a sexual act.

Your task: Persuade Character 2 to do something about the comment. You want to report it to the app, but your friend says the person who posted it might know it was you.

Things to consider: Who are you, where are you and why are you there?

--- Cut here

Character 2

Character 2: You are a friend of Character 1. They are at your house and you are looking through social media together when you come across someone mentioning you in an indirect way, suggesting you are someone who is 'easy' and says yes to any request for a sexual act. Even though it doesn't mention you by name, you're fairly sure it's about you. You want to ignore it, but your friend thinks you should report it.

Your task: Speak to your friend about the comments. You're not sure if the person who posted them would know who reported them if you do it through the app.

Things to think about: Who are you, where are you and why are you there?